Hannover (wbn). Der FDP-Bundeschancellor and Federal Minister of Economics Philipp Rösler goes with demonstrative calmness into the upcoming elections. This he made clear in the framework of a background interview with a small group of journalists from the Niedersächsische Landespressekonferenz.

Rösler spoke of a "election campaign" between Black-Gold on the one hand and Red-Green on the other. In this context it is clear for him that also in Lower Saxony the black-gold federal political successes overshadow the election campaign in the Leine and Weser region. With the FDP-Bundeschancellor the Weserbergland-Nachrichten.de conducted a live interview, which can immediately be accessed via the link from Ustream.
